Learning with BCA
A joint development with Cosmetics Cluster UK
Developing and Marketing Cosmetic Ingredients

Wednesday 9 October 2024 at 10.00 am
De Vere Cranage Estate, Holmes Chapel

WHY ATTEND

This course considers the broad range of regulatory, technical and ethical issues which can affect the success of an ingredient in cosmetic formulations. It highlights which factors need to be covered to ensure a successful introduction.

WHAT WILL THE COURSE DELIVER

The course highlights applicable regulatory issues from both the chemical and cosmetic fields, and considers the potential conflict between them, and how these can be minimised. The requirements for safety assessments, and use of alternative testing methodology is examined. The course will examine the development and validation of cosmetic claims, and how these can be used by ingredient suppliers. Finally, the requirement for information on sustainability and ethical topics is examined, together with the labelling schemes used to support them.

WHO WILL BENEFIT

The session will be useful for chemists and marketers new to industry, and to chemical/ ingredient producers who wish to enter the cosmetic market, either as new suppliers or with products established in complementary markets, such as food and pharmaceuticals. Formulators may also be interested to understand how an ingredient is developed and marketed.

BCA/CCUK members are offered priority booking with attendance limited to 20 delegates to ensure that the course is interactive. Attendees will receive hard copy of the course material.

This course is presented by Amanda Isom and John Hibbs. Amanda has over 25 years' experience in cosmetics, including 20 years with the CTPA, working on technical and regulatory issues. John has 40 years' experience in the chemical industry, covering technical, business, and commercial roles.
